GERMANY WARNS OF SOVIET MENACE

C. OF C. PLACES MAIL PETITIONS IN CIRCULATION

Postmaster Hays Is Urged To Forward Names To Nation's Capital

CIVIC CLUBS ASSISTING

Use Of Buses To Carry Letters Is Sought

Petitions for improvement in Circleville mail service were put in circulation Saturday by the Chamber of Commerce through various civic organizations. The petitions, when filled, will be presented to Postmaster A. Hulse Hays for forwarding to postoffice department officials in Washington D. C.

Improvement in postal service has long been needed in Circleville. The problem was discussed at a recent meeting of the Chamber of Commerce with members of the Retail Merchants' Association urging some action be taken after Postmaster Hays spoke at length about possible improvements.

The petitions are being signed eagerly by merchants and tradespeople, who are hopeful that Washington will turn a friendly ear toward the Circleville appeal.

The text of the petition follows:

"The undersigned patrons and business men and women of Circleville, Pickaway county, Ohio, respectfully represent that the present mail service is so inadequate and so inefficient, and also the time at which the mail is dispatched from Circleville causes unreasonable delay in delivering such mail to its destination, and we therefore hereby petition for an improvement in such mail service in the following particulars, to wit:

"1. That the evening mail north bound out of Circleville be changed so that it can be despatched or sent via the Scioto Valley bus line at 9:05 o'clock p. m. and on arrival of said mail in Columbus it be immediately distributed and delivered to the outgoing mail trains for Chicago, Indianapolis, and St. Louis and other points.

"2. That said out bound mail from Columbus be despatched or sent directly via the Scioto Valley bus line leaving Columbus at 6 o'clock a. m.

"That said in bound mail bus also carry registered mail."

The regulation will be in force on Saturdays from 9 a. m. to 10 p. m. Other week days it will be from 9 a. m. to 6 p. m. There are no restrictions on Sunday.

Police officers expected to have all signs posted before noon, and start checking cars during the afternoon.

FATE OF NEGRO GOES TO JURORS AT NOON TODAY

ASHEVILLE, N. C., Aug. 22—(UP)—District Solicitor Zeb V. Nettles said today that the trial of tall, Martin Moore, negro youth accused of murdering 19-year-old Helen Clevenger of New York, would go to the jury by noon.

The prosecutor planned to call perhaps one or two witnesses in rebuttal of Moore's testimony that a confession was forced from him by torture and the testimony of four persons that at the time Miss Clevenger was slain Moore was sleeping at the home of a sweet-heart.

In his summation, Nettles will demand that Moore, 22, die in North Carolina's lethal gas chamber. Two negroes were executed there yesterday.

TOWNSENDITES TO MEET SUNDAY FOR BIG RALLY

COLUMBUS, Aug. 22—(UP)—With internal dissension over the appearance of the Fr. Charles E. Coughlin at the Townsend rally settled, leaders prepared to welcome approximately 25,000 persons at an all-Ohio Townsend rally here tomorrow.

Quick action by Townsend leaders and members of the National Union for Social Justice yesterday prevented late Townsend supporters from sending a telegram to Dr. Francis Townsend, father of the old age pension revolving plan, protesting against Father Coughlin's appearance.

Townsendites were angered, they said, when they read published reports that Father Coughlin would appear at the rally. Officials, however, denied the reports, saying that "Father Coughlin has not even been invited."

MISSOURI MOTHER GIVES BIRTH TO SEXTUPLETS

MENDON, Mo., Aug. 22—(UP)—The news that Mrs. Adeline Speichinger, 36-year-old mother of ten living children, had given birth to sextuplets thirteen days ago brought scores of visitors to this rural community today.

Only one of the babies, a rosy-cheeked, 10-pound girl, lived. Five others were stillborn, and together weighed less than a pound.

Dr. W. B. Lucas, 30-year-old country physician, who attended Mrs. Speichinger, said:

"The five might have developed perfectly and survived had Mrs. Speichinger been in better health."

SIX FACE COURT RESULT OF JURY 2-DAY SESSION

Carl Cross Indicted For Selling Farm Goods Under Mortgage

EIGHT CHARGES IGNORED

Seymour To Get Hearing On Incest Complaint

Six men, five from Circleville and one from Wayne township, will face Judge J. W. Adkins Monday afternoon to answer to grand jury indictments charging criminal offenses ranging from selling mortgaged property and assault to incest.

Judge Adkins fixed Monday afternoon for the arraignment in a conference with Prosecutor Ray W. Davis Saturday. The grand jury, of which W. S. Gearhart was foreman, returned its finding Friday afternoon following two days' deliberation. Thirty-four witnesses were questioned, results in eight charges ignored, one against Donald Platt on a statutory offense passed to the September session of the court, and six secret indictments.

Carl Cross Indicted

Carl Cross, widely known Wayne township farmer, was indicted for selling property already mortgaged to the Columbus Production Credit Association. He disposed of 628 bushels of wheat and three horses, all mortgaged, the jury heard.

Cross is free under bond.

George Seymour, E. Mound street, is charged with incest concerning his 12-year-old daughter.

Roscoe Bailey and Lawrence Groom, both of Circleville, are indicted for carrying concealed weapons. They were arrested June 26, Bailey carrying a butcher knife and Groom a policeman's knife.

Joe Hickey, Maplewood avenue, faces the court under a cutting to wound indictment, as a result of an injury inflicted on Ed Phillips August 16.

The other indictment charged Irvin Hampp, Circleville, with larceny. The indictment claims he took groceries valued $150 from the parked automobile of Mrs. Merl Thornton June 27.

Womenfolk Plead for Lives of Their Husbands in War-Torn Spain

WOMENFOLKS in the town of Constantino, Spain, are commanded to come out of their homes with hands upraised by soldiers of the Spanish Foreign Legion as they invade the town in search for Fascist rebel snipers and contraband. The women, terrified, plead for the lives of their husbands. Approximately 100 men of Constantino, suspected of rebel sympathies, were executed, dispatches say.

By FRANCISCO FERNANDEZ
United Press Staff Correspondent
BILBOA, Spain, Aug. 22—(UP)—I have just returned from Cijon where I saw a loyalist army take the Simancas barracks, last stronghold of the rebels in that city.

I watched the action from a house on a terrace, from the opening bombardment until hours later, when the rebels came screaming from an inferno of flame which was all that was left of their barracks.

Loyalists told me that 500 soldiers and 100 officers died in the flames.

For five weeks I have been mobilized in this area. I went to Cijon Thursday night for the final phase of the long siege of the rebel army men who held out tenaciously in their last fortress — the great Simanca barracks.

Dynamiters in Action

Thursday night two cannons and 500 riflemen arrived from San Sebastian to reinforce the loyalist army, which included the Asturias miners known for their use of dynamite against their enemies.

Preparations for the final assault were started early yesterday. The barracks were entirely surrounded. Four three-motored loyalist planes came overhead and began dropping incendiary bombs on the barracks. At the same time the loyalists attacked from four sides.

I was looking out from my point of vantage across the battle scene, with the beach and the sea in the background, and off the shore, the damaged rebel cruiser Almirante Cervera.

(Dispatches from Madrid report that the Almirante Cervera went to Cijon by mistake, believing that rebels held it.)

The syndicalist and anarchist miners went energetically to the attack—the vanguard, in the face of a courageous resistance.

Loyalist soldiers held back at first lest the fierce miners ambush them.

After the first move toward the barracks area, the loyalist commanders conferred 10 minutes and decided to halt their men until they could see the effect of the plane's bombs.

They were not long in finding out. By 10 a. m. the great central barracks building was a blazing spectacle of beauty and terror.

The heat of the flames attacking the upper part of the barracks drove the rebels to the lower story.

Rear Guard Remains

A rear guard which remained until the last moment maintained machine gun, rifle and mortar fire. The attacking miners sought to take the barracks in the face of the fire, but suffered heavy losses.

The flames spread to the lower floors of the barracks. The rebels had to abandon it and they fled to two nearby army huts. The flames followed them.

At the windows of burning huts then appeared the rebel survivors, shrieking from pain and horror.

This was when the pocked dynamiters went into action. Igniting the fuses to their sticks of dynamites by means of their cigars, they threw the sticks into the buildings and destroyed the rebels' last defenses.

Then, at 11 a. m., the order for the final assault was given. The rebel soldiers, panic stricken, came running from the blazing ruins screaming, hands in the air, without weapons.

Rear guards entered the gates of the barracks grounds, and collected rifles, removed pieces of artillery, and sorted sacks of munitions.

I talked to various troops who were in the storming and mopping up parties. They told me that 500 soldiers and 100 officers, some belonging to other garrisons, died in the flames.

They said that three cannons, 25 machine guns, 300 rifles and quantities of ammunition were salvaged from the blaze.

GASOLINE ON FIRE

No damage was done Friday at 10 p. m. when a can of gasoline caught fire in the E. E. Clifton garage. Firemen were called.

NAZIS PROTEST NAVAL ACTIVITY OF RED NATION

Controlled Press Reports 40 Submarines Found In Baltic Sea

AIRPLANES BEING BUILT

Anti-German Broadcasts Hit By Government

BERLIN, Aug. 22—(UP)—German wrath, officially inspired, turned strongly against Soviet Russia today.

A protest to Russia and Spain against alleged anti-Nazi radio propaganda was followed by scare stories of Soviet naval preparations.

Nevertheless, there was a strong belief in diplomatic quarters that Germany desires to remain completely isolated from the Spanish civil war situation and would willingly agree to a non-intervention agreement among the powers.

This is because a reserved German attitude—pointed mainly at defending German interests—despite the natural unofficial sympathy with the rebels—will be of great advantage to Germany at the long pending conference on the Locarno treaty.

40 Submarines Ready

Chief feature of the "red menace" campaign today was a story in the Voelkischer Beobachter that its Koenigsburg, East Prussia, edition reported that the Baltic sea more than 40 submarines of the Detabrist class of 896 tons and an alleged cruising range of 7,000 miles.

The story reported also that Russia was collecting fuel and building subterranean airports at the Kronstadt fortress—called, at the occasion, the "Red Malta."

There the story said the Russian fleet was preparing "to take off one day in the service of world revolution."

Much of the article was disseminated by the controlled news agency. It said that Russia is arming fast on land and sea especially at sea; that the shipyards were working at full speed not only at Kronstadt but at many places in the Arctic where small types were being built, for transport through the Stalin canal to the Baltic.

Air Force Discussed

The Russia air force also is being played up in the newspapers and the Soviet air league is called "Red Army No. 2" and credited with a membership of 13,000,000.

WORKMEN PLACE FAMILY MOUND OFF PARK SITE

Despite promises of the Ohio Archeological and History Society that nothing would be done pending a conference, workmen have placed the Boggs family monument in Logan Elm state park at a point about 10 feet from the original spot.

Since the present location has no historic value, members of the Boggs family are displeased with the action. The monument formerly stood on the spot occupied by the original Boggs cabin at the park site.

MOTION IS FILED FOR NEW TRIAL IN SUPPORT CASE

Motion for a new trial in the case of the State of Ohio in relation to Olivia Puffinberger, city, against James Brunk, Jr., and the U. S. Fidelity & Guaranty Co., Baltimore, was on file in common pleas court Saturday alleging she errors.

A verdict for $500 in favor of Mrs. Puffinberger and J. E. Woods, who filed an answer and cross petition, was returned Tuesday by a jury. Mrs. Puffinberger asked $850 and Mr. Woods $500 in support of a minor child. The fidelity company was liable for the case to the extent of $500 in support bond.

SPANISH PLEDGE TO KEEP HANDS OFF STEAMERS

LONDON, Aug. 22—(UP)—The Spanish government, "hard pressed by rebels at home and Nazi-Fascist powers abroad, made a gesture of major importance today by renouncing any right it might have to search British ships on the high seas.

Further, it was announced officially, the British and Spanish governments are discussing the position of British vessels actually inside Spanish territorial waters—inside the three mile zone as measured from the shoreline.

It was believed that by its action Spain renounced any claim to justification for halting ships of any nation, and thus moved a long way to calm the rage, carefully nurtured by government press bureaus, of Germany and Italy.

British leaders believed that the renunciation would be extended at once to ships of all nations, and would remove perhaps the chief cause for fear of an international blow up.

TWO MEN TELL STORY OF DEATH IN GASSY MINE

MOBERLY, Mo., Aug. 22—(UP)—A story of 72 black hours imprisoned with the bodies of two companions in a tunnel 110 feet beneath the earth's surface was told today by the two survivors.

The men — "Boomer" Jack McCann, 50, and Demmer Sexton, 37 — rallied from effects of days of breathing poison gases and fighting off exhaustion and starvation while determined rescue workers toiled through muck and fire-charred timbers to reach them.

Veteran miners, who never lost hope that their friends would be rescued, were convinced that only quick realization of their plight saved the men.

The men, caught when the main shaft of the long-abandoned mine collapsed and fire started in the tangle, dobed themselves behind a barricade to shut off black damp and other mine gases. Within two hours the first man died. He was Edward Stoner, Jr.

They ventured from their haven. Within a few minutes, McCann, tough, hardened veteran of the coal mines, said Stoner "keeled over."

"I tried to make him breathe. I pulled open his shirt and felt his chest. His heart stopped — just like that."

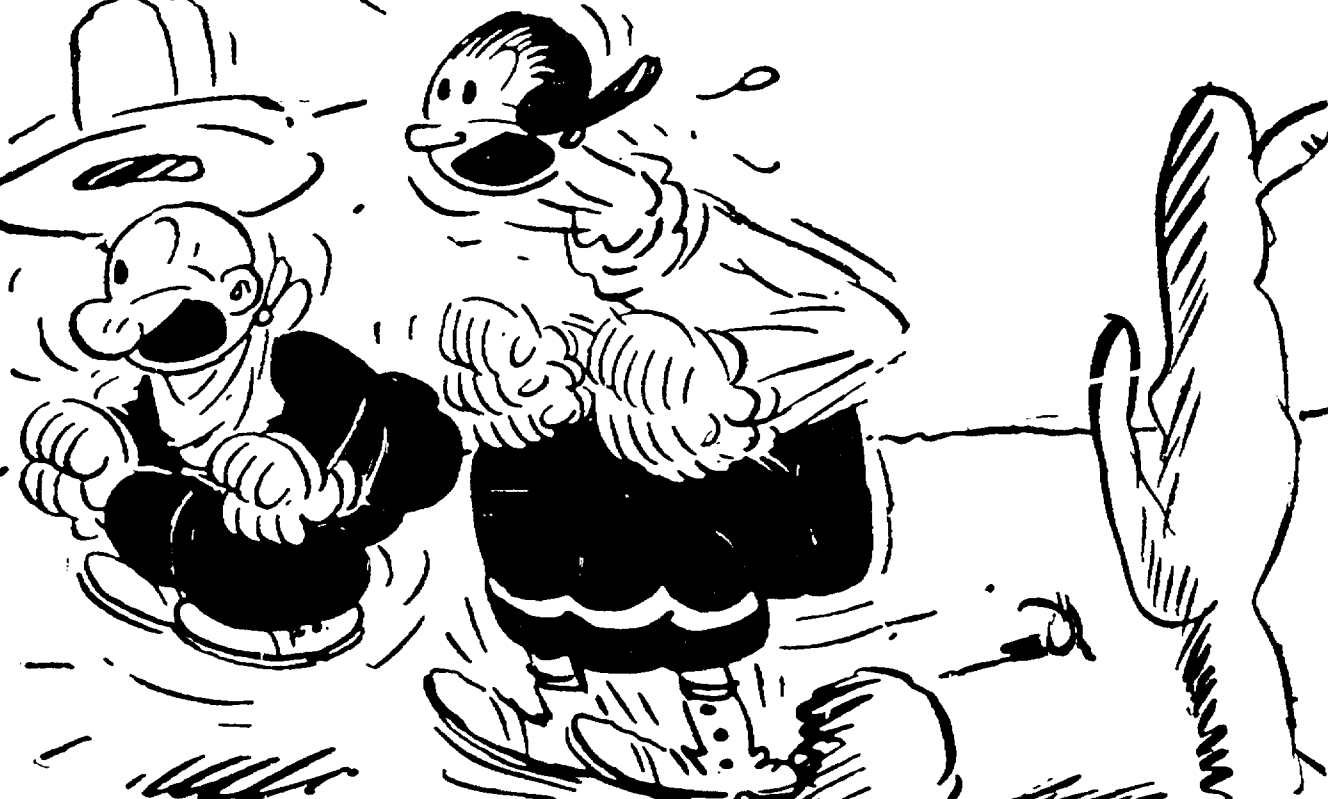

A few minutes later, George Dameron, 27, negro mule driver, succumbed to the dread damp. His mule, imprisoned with the men, died too.

McCann for 72 hours prayed and sang and kept awake, hearing the muffled noise from above that testified to the inch-by-inch approach of the rescue workers, and watching Sexton grow steadily weaker.

MAN'S JOKE, STEALING POLICE CAR, IS COSTLY

LONG BEACH, Cal., Aug. 22—(UP)—Alfred Garnett told police he simply meant it as a joke when he took a police car from in front of a station and left it in a vacant lot hitched securely to a mule. Garnett's record showed a robbery conviction. He was sentenced to five years for his joke.

DRIVERS UNHURT IN TWO WRECKS EARLY IN MORN

Two drivers escaped injury early Saturday in automobile accidents on N. Court street.

A Ford coupe being driven north by Charles Cookson, 20, of Ringgold, was wrecked when Mr. Cookson failed to make the turn at the north corporation line and sideswiped a tree. The accident was reported at 2:30 a. m. Sheriff Charles Radcliff investigated.

A bread truck driven by William D. Handley, 924 Thomas avenue, Columbus, collided with a parked car at 3:30 a. m. and overturned on the sidewalk in front of the Elks home.

Handley told officers he fell asleep. His truck struck the automobile of Maurice Fallon, N. Court street, parked in front of the Thomas home. Police investigated the accident.

VILLAGE STARTS WORK TO LAUNCH BRICKER DRIVE

MT. Sterling To Be Visited
By Large Crowd Sept. 10
Honoring Candidate

BROADCASTS ARRANGED

Mayor Arbogast Chairman
Of Town Committee

MT. STERLING, Aug. 22—Mt. Sterling in Madison county, birthplace of Attorney General John W. Bricker, Republican nominee for Governor, is preparing for the biggest event in its history.

There, on September 10, the 1936 Republican campaign in Ohio will be officially opened.

Attorney General Bricker will return to his native village to launch his drive for the governorship, and at the same time Henry J. Allen, former United States Senator from Kansas, will open launch his drive for the governorship Alfred M. Landon, in this state.

September 10 is still three weeks away, but Mt. Sterling residents already are making elaborate plans for the handling of an expected crowd of 25,000. It isn't every day that a village of 12,000 is visited by that many people.

Judge King Chairman

The Bricker-for Governor Club of Madison county, in co-operation with the Republican Central and Executive committees of the county, is handling details of the affair. Common Pleas Judge John R. Kin of Franklin County, a native of Madison county, is president of the club.

Mayor John Arbogast of Mt. Sterling is the general chairman of the committee on arrangements, however. He is being assisted by Arthur B. Simons, secretary of the Bricker-for-Governor Club, and by other officers of the organization.

The scene of the campaign opener will be on oak grove, situated on the farm of Scott Alkire, on the north boundary of Mt. Sterling. The grove occupies 20 acres, and an adjacent 40-acre field will be used for parking purposes.

A platform, 50 by 60 feet, will be built for the occasion, and the village water supply is being piped to the grove for the accommodation of visitors.

Barbecue Prepared

A huge barbecue will be staged in connection with the program, and the entire crowd will be fed. The buffaloes have been brought from the west and are now in a stockyard at London, Ohio. They will be supplemented with other barbecued meats, and in addition bouillon and coffee will be served.

The job of policing the grounds and directing parking will be handled by approximately 25 uniformed sheriff's deputies from Madison, Clark, Fayette and Franklin Counties.

The program will get under way at 2 p. m. Details have not yet been worked out, but tentative plans include band music and vocal selection by the Madison county Women's Glee Club and the Columbus Republican Glee Club directed by Karl H. (Pep) Hoening.

The program will be carried on a seven-station, state-wide radio hookup, and an amplifying system will carry the voices of the speakers to all parts of the grove.

To Decorate Village

Elaborate plans for the decoration of the streets and stores of the village are being completed.

Dr. E. L. Evans of West Jefferson, chairman of the Madison County Republican Executive committee, will be chairman of the reception committee.

Committee appointments have not been completed. However, former State Senator Robert Rea of London is chairman of the committee arranging the music program, and H. R. Alkire is chairman of the grounds committee. H. O. Bostwick is chairman of the committee arranging the barbecue.

City's Fine Revenue Huge

LOS ANGELES (UP)—Crime does not pay for the criminal—but mild ones like misadventures, getting drunk, traffic violations, etc., contribute largely to the city's income. The entire receipts from fines, forfeitures of bonds and other court sources for the 1935-1936 fiscal period was $1,899,938.25.

GARDEN ON ISLAND

MIDWAY ISLAND (UP)—Once an utterly barren, sandy atoll 2,200 miles northwest of Honolulu, Midway now is a potato producing area. Pan American Airways' employees stationed here have cultivated a large vegetable garden, and recently shipped several boxes of new potatoes to Honolulu markets.

French in New York Worrying Over Welfare of Own Nation

But Believe Fascists
Cannot Overthrow
Leftists Groups

By HARRY LEVIN

Central Press Correspondent
NEW YORK, Aug. 7. — Does France, ruled by an energetic anti-Fascist, People's Front government face the fate that has beset the Popular Front government of Spain? That is what many Frenchmen of New York are asking. They see a similar People's Front coalition, voted into power in Spain three months earlier, fighting a life-and-death struggle with Fascist rebels.

Observers believe that success or failure of the Spanish Fascists may determine whether France's shirted corps, the Croix de Feu (Cross of Fire), led by Col. Count Casimir Paul de la Roque, aided by the reactionaries and other rightists, will seek to overthrow the Blum republican "Radical Socialist-Socialist - Communist" bloc by resort to arms.

Much Alike

The political complexion of France and its Spanish neighbor are startlingly similar. In both, the People's Front won on an anti-Fascist platform, with planks for nationalization of industries, regulation of the big trusts and increased taxation for the rich. In each case, too, the anti-Fascist Front parties returned sizable numbers of deputies to parliament. But here the parallel ends—according to Frenchmen interviewed in New York.

Andre Heymann, French-born general secretary of the Federation of the Popular Front of the United States, whose French members take a keen interest in happenings at home, is of the opinion that France will not follow Spain into chaos.

According to him and other Frenchmen in New York, a Fascist putsch would be a nationwide signal for a general strike to paralyze the rebels. Such a strike was impossible in Spain, where trade unions were not unified into a single body and where Syndicalists sabotaged Socialist strikes and worked unwittingly with Fascist provocateurs, these French observers say.

A Popular Front View

Heymann goes on to say: "In France something has occurred. And it is this new conception of the French people toward a new kind of government, a government which they actually see realizing its program. Make no mistake about that. Accustomed for years to short-lived cabinets making glib, unfulfilled promises, cabinets of Tardeux, Laval and Doumergues, the electorate, both People's Front and the opposition, were literally dumfounded with the speed of the new coalition enacted legislation it had promised in its platform. It was as if the Socialists in America should suddenly come to power and pass half of its platform within seven days.

Legislation Quickly Enacted

"Within one week after Blum assumed the premiership, the People's Front pushed through the following acts by large majorities: A 40-hour working week in most industries, wage increases from 8 per cent upward, vacations with pay, and increased social security. "These measures were enacted to the accompaniment of the greatest strikes in French history when millions of workers walked out or began to stay in' (or as you call them in America, 'sit down' strikes). And these strikes were not coercion by the trades unions on the government, since it was their own elected majority that was enacting the new measures. It was, in truth, a stern and disciplined reminder to the opposition Fascists and reactionaries that the Front Popular's voters were backing up their government in the most symbolical way they knew how.

Orderly Strikes

"Papers in America have expressed surprise at the amazing orderliness at the utter absence of bloodshed or violence when millions left their factories. Is it really very remarkable? "In the preceding governments, police and mobile guards were sent to break up picket lines and demonstrations. Now the police remain neutral. Therefore, no head-busting or violence. It is interesting to note that Fascist provocation was virtually nonexistent. You see, they realized it was like trying to stop an avalanche."

Heymann described the startling growth of the French trade unions during the strike. In three weeks membership soared from 1,000,000 to 2,500,000. Workers now are joining the unions at the rate of 75,000 a day, he asserts. There are approximately 12 million industrial workers in France.

Another Man's View

A "gray-mustached importer 'button-holed' me. He said: 'Perhaps in France today, with my friends' urging, I should be a Fascist, except for the fact that I am a republican. I was and still am International repercussions of the Spanish revolution are making themselves felt. In France the present People's Front government, headed by Premier Leon Blum, may find itself faced with a life-and-death struggle against the French Fascist faction headed by Col. Casimir de la Roque if the Fascist rebels in Spain should win out, encouraging similar uprisings in other European countries.

a Radical Socialist. I believe in private property but not at the expense of my neighbor. Some day I may be a Socialist, a Blum Socialist, perhaps even a Communist."

"The People's Front is remaking the Radical Socialists as a party. They had stagnated, and ceased being the largest group in the chamber. Today they have new blood, new ideas, new leaders. They know the menace of fascism, the peril it means to traditional French republicanism. Almost 90 per cent of the Radical Socialists are with Daladier and the People's Front."

"That is why," explained our waiter who had been standing by listening, "the munitions industries and the reactionary Bank of France, run by 200 rich families, were nationalized by larger majorities than the People's Front commanded in the chamber. Even some of the opposition see the way La Belle France must go."

French Intervention?

Then the subject of French intervention in Spain, if Italy and Germany helped the rebels, was broached.

My audience became grave. "It is very touchy," began the importer. "There is still a large anti-government opposition in France. It is seeking excuses to embarrass the People's Front, and to overthrow it if possible. French trades unions have subscribed funds to aid the Spanish government, so have some of your American unions. Now Blum is allowing French citizens to enlist with the Spanish loyalists. You have read, to end conflict and to bar further German and Italian war aid."

Fascists' Side

In the meantime, a follower of the Croix de Feu in New York, asserted excitedly to me: "To restore France to her people, that is the mission of our divisions. And that is why Col. de la Roque has changed the name of our followers from Croix de Feu to Popular party."

"Blum's People's Front government pretends to represent France. It is Communist."

"Now that the Communists have taken our beloved country we must be ready to lay down our lives to restore France to her people."

VOICE ...of the... PEOPLE

One has only to move about Cleveland these days to realize that it has suddenly become "CURB MINDED" — On with the CURBS let joy be unconfined — Kill the trees or chop them down. What's a tree compared to the beauty of a cement CURB? Well; Not all of us feel that way; ninety-nine women out of a hundred if asked a preference between a curb and a tree will count a curb of no moment and a tree of supreme importance.

A tree means grateful shade in this climate of equatorial heat — a tree is the only living, growing thing that withstands even the drought of this middle-west. A tree goes on giving its beneficent comfort and beauty long after the one who planted it has reverted to dust. A tree is a "Thing of Beauty and a Joy Forever" — What's a CURB? What indeed?

I am thinking chiefly about the curbing now being done on E. Mound street, where fine old shade trees are having most of their roots ruthlessly chopped off, or are being cut down to make way for the CURB!

I am told in order to conform to the line designated by the city ordinance, most of the trees in one block will be sacrificed. In a protest to one of the engineers I was told that the CURB was going down according to the line of the city ordinance and that, (here I quote him) "if the trees of the town have to go down why that's just too bad!"

So it is, too, too bad. If the city ordinance so harms the city, let them change the ordinance to conform to the needs and desires of the citizens. If the citizens have to conform to an ordinance which can bring only ugliness and discomfort why is the United States government building (the post office) permitted to set its own line for its curb?

Why, if we must have the ordinance "status quo" could we not have the cement gutter built out around the roots of the trees and the curbing continued on the side next the tree?

An effort is being made to rouse the women's organizations of the town for some concerted effort and protest. If we have to do of all time, let's save our trees.

I hope you will lend the aid of publicity in your valuable paper and help the effort now being made.

Sincerely,

CAROLINE M. TOENSMEIER

The Gospel for All Men

ILLUSTRATED SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

By the Rev. Alvin E. Bell
And Alfred J. Bunker

A Roman centurion named Cornelius, as he prayed, saw a vision of an angel, who told him to send to Peter to come and preach to him. So he sent three messengers to ask Peter to come with the messengers.

Peter also was given a vision of a great sheet let down from heaven, filled with all manner of animals. A voice told him to kill and eat them. When he refused, God said, "What God calls clean, call not thou unclean."

This was to prepare Peter to go with Cornelius' messengers. As he preached to this gentile group the Holy Spirit came upon them as he had come upon the apostles on the day of Pentecost more than ten years before.

When the church at Jerusalem heard of this they demanded an explanation. Peter showed them how God had blessed his preaching, and they glorified God for thus giving salvation to other races also. (GOLDEN TEXT—John 3:16)

John 3:16—"For God so loved the world, that he gave his only begotten Son, that whosoever believeth on him should not perish, but have eternal life."

Sowing and Reaping

"BRASS TACKS" ON THE SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

By DR. ALVIN E. BELL
(The International Uniform Lesson on the above topic for Aug. 23 is Acts 10:1-11:18 and Romans 1:13-17, especially Acts 11:5-18 and Romans 1:13-17, the Golden Text being John 3:16, "For God so loved the world, that he gave his only begotten Son, that whosoever believeth on him should not perish, but have eternal life.")

ALTHOUGH our Lord Jesus manifested utmost breadth of sympathy for all races and classes of people, and told his disciples plainly of "other sheep not of this fold whom he must bring that there might be one fold and one Shepherd," and although at his ascension he had plainly commanded them to preach the gospel to every creature, "more than 10 long years had passed before the church he established really opened the doors of fellowship and spiritual privilege to other nationalities and races than Jews. And when the new idea of broader fellowship was born it was attended by birth pangs of the sharpest sort. Race prejudice dies hard in every age.

Peter's Sympathies Broadened
God had prepared Cornelius, a gentile centurion as Caesarea, to receive the gospel, sending him a vision of an angel with instructions to send messengers to the apostle Peter to ask him to come and preach to them. But God knew that he would have a harder time with the apostle to get him to carry his gospel to this gentile. So God sent a vision to Peter, and repeated the vision three times, showing him a large sheet let down from heaven, containing "all manner of four-footed beasts of the earth and wild beasts and creeping things and birds of the heaven." There came also a voice commanding Peter to "Rise, kill and eat." To this Peter replied, "Not so, Lord: for nothing common or unclean hath ever entered my mouth." To which Peter heard the heavenly voice reply, "What God hath cleansed, make not thou common." In other words, "Don't be more strict or more conservative than God himself!" In immediate connection with this vision and voice came a visit of three gentile messengers from Cornelius petitioning Peter to come with them to Caesarea to preach the gospel to him and his household. The vision was not wasted on Peter. He had sense and grace enough to put three and three together, when "the Spirit bade him go with them, making no distinction." And as he preached the gospel to this house full of gentiles, "the Holy Spirit fell on them, even as on the apostles at the beginning." Here was a repetition of Pentecost, probably even including the tongues of fire.

The Church Catches Step
The church at Jerusalem became nervous at the news of Peter's radical action at Caesarea, and called him upon the carpet to explain his unorthodox ministry in receiving gentiles into full membership in the church. It was a critical moment in the life of the church. But Peter wisely showed the hand of God as it led both him and Cornelius, and recounted how God poured out his Spirit upon them in a veritable gentile Pentecost! "If then God gave unto them the like gift, as he did also unto us, when we believed on the Lord Jesus Christ, who was I, that I could withstand God?" The church caught the point and made no further move to "withstand God," but gave the movement its blessing. It had taken a long while to do it, but in that action the church at last caught step with God in his onward march towards the realization of the eternal divine ideal of a universal brotherhood of all men through the gospel, "the power of God unto salvation to everyone that believeth; to the Jew first, and also to the Greek."

HORSE STAGING COMEBACK?

Nobody looks for the return of man's
"noblest animal friend" as a genuine
rival of gasoline propulsion on the highway
but it is interesting to note that the horse
still makes a brave effort to be of service in the field of transportation. In the back country and on smaller farms, the quadruped has never made a complete surrender, but it now claimed that even in centres of heavy traffic he is by no means a negligible factor.

New York City reports 1,200 horses pulling vegetable wagons as opposed to 1,217 trucks. This is but a single item but we are further informed that there are no fewer than 25,000 to 30,000 horses in the metropolis. Dr. James R. Kenny, chief veterinarian of the New York Women's League for Animals, said last week that the increase of short hauling in the city had caused several companies to abandon trucks for horses.

A somewhat curious development consequent upon the foregoing facts is that some humane societies in the larger cities are complaining of a shortage of horse troughs.
Despite the statistics quoted, however, we must accept with a grain of salt the conspicuous heading in an esteemed contemporary that "New York is going back to horses again."

"THE MARINES HAVE LANDED"

THE Doughboys, the Engineers and the Artillerymen who went to France and came back with the praises of the Marines
ringing in their ears, will have a secret
sense of satisfaction in the news that comes out of China. Four Marines, on an innocent lark, decided that things were going all too smoothly in that far-off land
and decided to create a "Communist scare." So they ran up a red curtain on the American Embassy's flagpole in the dead of the night, and then, fearing betrayal at the hands of a sentry, knocked that vigilant gentleman unconscious, and stole his revolver. Then they went absent
without leave and were promptly arrested
upon their return.

Does this constitute a stain on the proud record of the Marines? We fear that it does, but the Marines, we believe, will be equal to the situation. They will prove that the curtain was not red, but only pink;
that the sentry was not assaulted, only
moon-struck, and that the four Marines,
bless their valiant hearts, were scouting
around in the hills for enemies of the United States and therefore not absent without leave.

Guatemala has broken with the League of Nations. Figuring, no doubt, on Ethiopia's example of getting nothing by staying in.

Merry-Go-Round

AMBASSADOR RUSSO THE BRASS RING

WASHINGTON—To the naked eye, Au-gusto Rosso of Italy does not impress
one as being a very prepossessing ambassador. He has an almost mischievous twinkle in his eye, and seems completely incapable of assuming the Washington Monument attitude of the average diplomat.

Furthermore, you discover after you know him that he is quite capable, when
in the proper atmosphere, of arraying himself in the full head-dress of a Sioux Indian
—he being an honorary chieftain—and executing a war-dance which certainly was not learned in the ball-rooms of diplomacy.

So that you wonder how Mussolini, a hard-fisted dictator famous for his judgment of men and his ability to get what he goes after, could have picked Augusto Rosso not merely as his Ambassador Extraordinary to the United States but also as his agent on a score of other delicate and important missions.

But when you get to know Rosso, you discover that he takes his job most seriously; though never himself.

CRUCIAL WINTER

The days Rosso passed this winter probably were as serious as any in his life—
undoubtedly more serious than those experienced by any other ambassador in this country since the scoldings given the Japanese envoy by Secretary Stimson in 1932.
The pressure which Secretary Hull brought up on Italy to prevent war in the Mediterranean still is unwritten history, but it was considerable. Rosso was called in for some of the stiffest advice that it is possible for the representative of one friendly nation to give another.

He took it in a manner which won him
respect, no matter how much the State Department was in disagreement.

Rosso's predecessor, Ambassador di
Martino, literally beat a path to the State Department complaining about every unfavorable comment which appeared in the press. It was he who precipitated the court martial of General Smedley Butler
for criticizing Mussolini.

But although The Merry-Go-Round
among others, has taken Ambassador Rosso's cause and country for a dizzy and caustic ride, he never lost his head or sense of humor. He never went off half-cocked. He never bridled at criticism. And yet he never yielded any points on behalf of his Government.

In the middle of the Mediterranean
crisis, when many diplomats predicted an almost certain clash between Italy and Great Britain, Rosso announced that there would be no war, and outlined very carefully the reasons why. Down to the last detail he proved to be right.

FARM FAMILY

Ambassador Rosso was born about 45
years ago in the Piedmont, a section of northern Italy sometimes compared with
New England, not in its agriculture—for it is most fertile—but because, unlike the Neapolitans, its people keep their emotions
to themselves.

EN ROUTE TO MOSCOW

Rosso is leaving Washington now to become Italian Ambassador to Russia. Reason for the transfer is to help an old friend.

READ THIS FIRST:

Gay Elwell, cheek girl in a prominent Detroit club, meets a number of social elite when she fills in at a dinner party
at the request of Doctor Wilson, a club member. One is Brock Carter, a club
very friendly toward Gay, another, Wayne Adams, who is both interested
and annoyed by her; and finally, Tim Keenan and Christian Scott, both millionaires. Just as Wayne makes an elegant he is beginning to care for Gay, he tells her he plans to return to New York shortly. Tim Keenan, who is pretending a deep interest in Gay to arouse the jealousy of his fiancée, Eleanor Randolph, and hasten her return from Europe, announces his plans for a house party. Reluctantly Gay allows Tim to take her home from Wayne's party instead of returning with Wayne who had brought her. At this house party Gay meets Wayne anxiously indifferent. Gay overhears Marian Wilson and one of the other women at the party discussing her
"affair" with Tim.

(NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY)

CHAPTER 29

SLOWLY, little by little, Gay
tried to turn the door knob outside the bedroom, and she stopped
when she heard Grace Larimore's
cry of alarm.

"Someone's in your sitting room, Marian. The door—"

"Only the maid. I sent for her to run an errand."

Under cover of their voices, Gay
began again to twist the knob.
This time it turned unexpectedly
from the other side of the door.
Quick as a flash, Gay retreated behind a tall screen that fronted the fireplace.

"It's Jenny, Mrs. Wilson!"
Gay recognized the flat voice of a housemaid, who had brought linen that noon to her bathroom.

"You want me to mail these letters on your table? Yes, ma'am.
I'll take them myself, and I'll have time to mend your bed-jacket before I leave."

From behind the screen, Gay
heard Marian renew the conversation in a discreetly lowered voice.
"You know Eleanor better than I do, Grace. I think you ought to write to her immediately, or cable.
It's high time we decent women
protect our men against such young vamps!"

"This Elwell girl is more dangerous than the ordinary kind. I have a hunch that marriage is her game. The nerve of her! But right now, with Eleanor away,
Tim's ripe for picking."

Marian cried, "If only Johnny hadn't been such a fool, bringing her to our dinner party! He's never done such a thing before—introducing a girl of her type as a friend of ours!"

"My fault entirely," Grace admitted. "I wouldn't sit down 13
at table, remember? That's why
I feel it's my duty to straighten out this nasty mess for dear Ele-nor's sake." She paused. "Just one more cigarette, and I must run,
or Tim will keep his word and start for the golf course without
me. But wasn't Eleanor a fool to leave Tim this summer! He's human, just like any other man. And this Elwell person is pretty. But if he marries her, it will ruin
Eleanor's whole life. She adores Tim, though she still gapes over his crudeness. You've got to be right, Marian; it's positively my duty to warn Eleanor immediately of what's going on!"

"And do it soon, before it's too late," Mrs. Wilson advised. "Tim acts dead in earnest. I never believed he'd have the rotten bad
taste to put that girl in Eleanor's seat at table, but we saw it with our own eyes. And he's given her Eleanor's special suite, too."

"This is no passing infatuation, Marian. I know a mile off the signs of a man at the dangerous
age, in the clutches of a cold-blooded designing creature like this young Elwell." Grace Lar-more's voice cracked with insolent
contempt. "You can't fool me!
Peggy'd like to murder her for trying her wiles on Brock. And the way she runs after Wayne
Adams is positively disgusting."

At this precise moment the maid

announced, "I'm leavin' now, Mrs.
Wilson," and closed the sitting room door behind her.

Her departure, and the ringing of the bedroom telephone, gave Gay a chance to escape. Back in her own room, she felt physically
hurt and heart-sick.

Then she gathered her pride
about her and gave a disdainful
shrug.
"It's worth all the ugly things
they said about me, if I can really help Tim and Miss Randolph. Even if nobody ever knows the real truth but Tim and me."

Mid-afternoon, Gay deep in the cushions of a wing chair was equally deep in the pages of a book. Now and then, a sharp flash of lightning would penetrate the shadows of the room, and the silence of the library would be broken by ominous thunder of an approaching storm.

The room grew darker and darker as the lightning more and more frequent and intense. Gay sprang up, finally, and pressed an electric button. All the lights in the room flashed on. With a caught breath
of rapture, she looked at the books,
and books, and books—the rich
wall carvings—the magnificent painting over the fireplace. Then she slipped back into the entrancing world of unreality on the printed pages of the book she was reading.

The telephone brr-r-r-ed. Tim was speaking.

"Gay, you're not to worry.
We're all safe at the clubhouse.
It's raining here like the devil, and
a tree was struck out on the course, right in front of us, but—"
The line went dead.

"Quite a storm," Gay thought gladly, and buried her nose in her novel again.

The next breath, the terror-
stricken voice of Celeste, calling,
"Miss Elwell! Miss Elwell!" startled her out of her chair.

"Here you are! I have been looking everywhere for you, ma'm-selle!"
Celeste, her arms filled with
vials of medicine, a hot water bottle, and a small leather medicine
case, ran into the library, pouring out an excited jumble of French and broken English. "Mon Dieu—how I am frightened. Me—I go with her, because Jenny she has sent somewhere. I do not know where, mais non! But vite, ma'mselle. Vite!"

Gay interrupted—"What's wrong, Celeste? What's happened?"

"Celeste, gasping, tried valiantly
to make Gay understand. "Qui Mrs. Wilson! Her heart—she is dying, maybe! Before she stop speaking—she say, 'Get the injection.' I think the doctor, he leave
it ready—for fear she—but oh, ma'mselle, I am afraid. I do not know how to use! What can I do?
I have such fear she is already—
dead!"

"Oh no, Celeste! Don't say such things! Send for Doctor Wilson—"
The telephone will not work,
ma'mselle. The storm—"

To the end of her life, Gay never could remember how she descended to the pool with Celeste. She could recall nothing that happened,
until she found herself standing
over Marian Wilson, who lay, a crumpled heap in her orange bathing suit, at the edge of the pool.

Her heavy black hair, freed from the rubber cap, hung shining
about her face, which looked dead
white, rigid as marble. The arrogant red curve of her lips had changed to a piteous blue line.

Dead! The room, the pool, everything swam around Gay, and she clutched for support at a nearby
chair. A sob rose hysterically.
She choked it back. She must control herself. But fear made her tremble violently. She had had no experience with illness; had never seen death face to face.

"I don't believe she's dead. Help me carry her to that settle. Easy, Celeste! Now, give me—the needle.
Do you know how much of this injection she should have?"

Celeste shuddered. "Me—I know nothing! Only what she say—"
Gay sobbed a silent prayer.

"God, make me brave. Show me how!"

Then, ignorant though she was
of any first aid service, she managed to use the hypodermic needle
on Marian's arm with surprising deftness.

"Oh, but look!" Celeste presently screamed with hysteria. "She is not dead! See—she is coming back! Ma'mselle Elwell, you have saved her! I could not have done it, non, non! Jamais de la vie—"

"Silly," Gay's teeth were chattering, but tides of thankfulness
swept over her at the unmistakable signs of color and life that were flowing back into Marian's
pallid lips and cheeks. "A child
could have done what I did, and lots better!"

Marian Wilson said nothing,
while Celeste and Gay made her comfortable in her own room, and presently she was lying propped
up among the pillows, beautiful
again in her rose negligee, with rouged cheeks and mouth.

But when Celeste for the moment was occupied in the dressing room, Mrs. Wilson murmured drowsily, "I've been hating you for quite some time, Miss Elwell.
But—" her enormous black eyes smiled faintly into Gay's—"it's rather difficult to hate the person
who's saved your life!"

Somewhat dubiously, Gay studied her reflection in the mirrored door of her dressing room. She was dressed for dinner, in a flame-
colored tulle that fell in long,
sweeping lines to the floor, and Celeste was fastening from shoulder to waist a strand of palest
green orchids, sent up from Tim's hothouses. Gay couldn't make up her mind whether she approved
the effect. The colors were gorgeous together, but—

"Isn't it rather startling," Celeste? Those other women—
Mrs. Larimore and the rest—
wear such smart, correct clothes.
I'd hate to seem overdressed, and have them all staring at me!"

"Mais, non, ma'mselle!" The maid stood back, clasping her hands in admiration. "It is the man who will stare. Please, I beg of you, do not change. Such chic, ma'mselle! Monsieur Keenan will—"

The telephone rang. Mr. Keenan wished to speak with Miss Elwell.

"The whole gang's meeting in my study in half an hour, for a round of cocktails before dinner.
But I want to see you alone, first.
I understand you were quite a heroine this afternoon. Johnny's been telling me about it. But—outside of that—I've got something to show you." Gay caught the note of suppressed laughter in his voice. "Exhibit A. You'll enjoy
it. Be here in 15 minutes."

Gay promised, and sauntered out into the corridor and down the staircase to the main floor.

No one else was in sight. Undoubtedly, all the other guests
were still dressing for dinner; not hurrying nervously, as she had done, for fear of being late. They weren't anxious, those others. It didn't go to their heads, making them dizzy with excitement and happiness, to be here at Lake
Paradise as Tim Keenan's guests.
But Gay could have danced for sheer joy.

She had decided to spend the 15
minutes before her rendezvous with Tim exploring some of the rooms she had not yet seen in this amazing house, and was walking toward a group of lavender
and pink jade figurines on a wall
table, when sounds of piano music
drew her to a room at the far end of the hall.

She paused in the doorway.

In the twilight of deep shadows
that lurked in the corners of the music room, his face waveringly
illuminated by the tall white tapers
that flanked the grand piano, Wayne Adams was playing. The music—though Gay did not recognize it—was Chopin's Prelude in D. What she did recognize was the enchanting loveliness of the melody, the brilliant technique of the player.

CONTRACT BRIDGE

THE ONE CHANCE

IN THE early days of auction bridge, after whist players had become accustomed to the added opportunities for fine play afforded
by the exposed hand, the following
valuable rule was promulgated.
When you have more than a single-
ton of partner's suit, a singleton
of another suit and a certain trump
trick accompanied by one or more
diamond trumps fit only for ruffing,
if you have the opening lead, lead
the singleton, instead of partner's
suit. Having won your trump
trick, lead partner's suit, so that
he may give you the desired ruff.
Today's deal shows how the lead-
er's partner also may utilize this
valuable play at times.

♠ A 7 5	♠ J 10 3
♠ A 7 6 2	♠ K Q
♠ 7 5 4 3 2	♠ Q 10 8 2

♠ K 8 8 6	♠ A Q 10 9
♠ 8 5 3	♠ J 7
♠ K	♠ K Q J 2
♠ A K J 9	♠ K 4

Bidding went: West, 1-Club, second hand; East, 1-Spade, using
the "one-over-one" forcing tactics.
South, 2-Diamonds; West,
3-Spades, to make certain that bidding did not die before reaching
a game contract; North, 4-Diamonds;
East, 4-Spades; South
passed, having too many losers to bid further, as his side was vulnerable.

Not wishing to make an opening
lead from his major diamond
tenace, even if partner had once

supported his call, South led the J of hearts. North's Ace won the trick. North could see just two added tricks on normal play—a trump trick and a diamond trick,
provided South held the Ace of diamonds. The sole chance of defeating the game contract of de-
ton of partner's suit, a singleton
of another suit and a certain trump
trick accompanied by one or more
diamond trumps fit only for ruffing,
if you have the opening lead, lead
the singleton, instead of partner's
suit. Having won your trump
trick, lead partner's suit, so that
he may give you the desired ruff.
Today's deal shows how the lead-
er's partner also may utilize this
valuable play at times.

♠ A J 7 6 5	♠ Q 9 3
♠ K Q J 2	♠ 9 8 8
♠ K 4	♠ 9 8 5

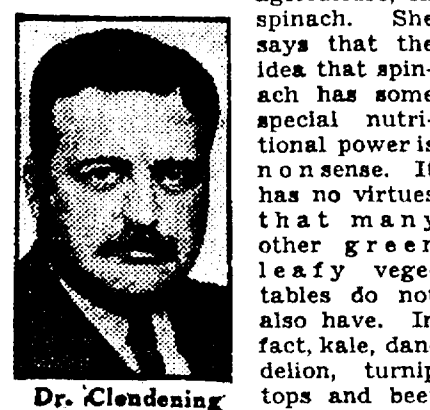

Above is a hand where West
played a contract of 4-Hearts, succeeded by North. West lost two spade tricks, then ruffed a lead of that suit. To avoid guessing how to play trumps, declarer led the K
of diamonds, as if he wanted to crossruff the hand. It was declarer's only chance to avoid guessing. Misinterpreting declarer's tactics, North led back a trump, enabling South's Q to be picked up, and insuring fulfillment
of contract.

DIET AND HEALTH

Spinach, Good Food, Becomes Dieticians' Fad

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

I SUPPOSE everyone has seen
by this time the report of Dr. Hazel
Muncell, from Nutritional Section
D of the federal department of

Dr. Clendenning

agriculture, on spinach. She says that the idea that spin-ach has some
special nutritional power is nonsense. It has no virtues
that many
other green
leafy vegetables do not
also have. In fact, kale, dandelion, turnip
tops and beet
greens are
even better.

"Spinach is the worst
of the lot," in her own words.
Her principal criticism of spin-ach is that the calcium is not absorbed to as great an extent as in other vegetables because of the formation of insoluble oxalates in the stomach.

The calcium in kale is utilized
79 per cent. The calcium in spin-ach is utilized only 20 per cent.

Doctor Muncell wants it known that spinach is not harmful. "It is not injurious and is a splendid source of iron. For iron it can't be beaten. But one dose of iron is enough."

Such a report comes as no surprise to any well informed dietitician. Nor does it invalidate the known virtues of spinach.

The spinach vogue has been a typical example of how people take up, exaggerate and make a fad of a very simple and truthful statement.

I cannot remember exactly who first recommended spinach for young growing children. I am inclined to think it was my friend,
Dr. McKim Marriott of St. Louis.
He, at any rate, began urging the use of pigmented vegetables early in infant feeding, because of their iron and blood-building qualities.

EDITOR'S NOTE: Seven pamphlets
by Dr. Clendenning are now being sent to a self-addressed envelope stamped with a three-cent stamp, to Dr. Logan Clendenning, in care of this paper. The pamphlets are: "The Value of Reducing Dieting," "Indigestion and Constipation,"
"Reducing and Gaining Weight,"
"Instructions for the Treatment of Diabetes," "Feminine Hygiene,"
and "The Care of the Hair and Skin."

HEAVYWEIGHT TITLE CONTEST ASSIGNED FOR JUNE 3 IN GARDEN'S BOWL

MAX SCHMELING DECLINES RICH LOUIS CONTEST

Braddock Expected to Be Ready for German By Next Spring

NEW YORK, Aug. 22.—(UP)—The next heavyweight fight for the championship of the world will be June 3, 1937, in Madison Square Garden's Long Island bowl.

The principals will be James J. Braddock, title holder, and Maxie Schmeling of Germany, who hopes to be the first man in history to regain the heavyweight title.

That was the status of affairs today after three days of wrangling between the New York Boxing commission, Braddock and his manager, Joe Gould, Schmeling and his manager, Joe Jacobs, Madison Square Garden, and the 20th Century Sporting club.

Schmeling was aboard the liner Bremen enroute home after turning down a flat guarantee of $300,000 or 50 per cent of the gate from the 20th Century's impresario, Mike Jacobs, for a return engagement with Joe Louis in Yankee stadium in September. Maxie wanted a $600,000 guarantee.

The tentative September 22 fight between Braddock and Schmeling was thrown into the scrap heap when the boxing commission couldn't decide whether the champion could be in condition to train for a bout so soon, and evaded the issue by announcing a decision would be forthcoming on Sept. 15. As a gesture Braddock will go to several more doctors for examinations of arthritis in one of his little fingers and both elbows.

Signing of the contracts for the championship bout which will give Braddock 42½ per cent and Schmeling $50,000 for expenses plus 20 per cent of the gate, were delayed five hours yesterday while Promoter Jacobs tried to persuade Schmeling to sign for another crack at Joe Louis, whom he defeated here in June.

YAWKEY FAVORS CRONIN IN WES FERRELL TILT

NEW YORK, Aug. 22.—(UP)—Fined and suspended for quitting under fire, Wesley Ferrell, Boston Red Sox pitcher who draws one of the highest salaries in the major leagues, returned to Boston today with his baseball future hanging in the balance.

Joe Cronin, Red Sox manager, indefinitely suspended Ferrell and fined him $1,000—one of the largest fines ever assessed against a player—for walking off the mound during a Yankee rally in the sixth inning of yesterday's New York-Boston game.

The 28-year-old Greensboro, N. C., pitcher, whose flaming temper caused Cleveland to trade him to Boston in May, 1934, threatened to punch Cronin in the jaw when he first learned of the fine and suspension but he calmed during the night and carried his case to Tom Yawkey, Red Sox owner. At a conference in which Cronin was present Yawkey told Ferrell: "Joe Cronin is the boss of this ball club. I expect him to run it for a long time to come. I'm backing him to the limit in anything he does."

Only one fine larger than Ferrell's was ever assessed by a manager against a player. That was the $5,000 fine slapped on Babe Ruth by Miller Huggins for breaking the Yankees' training rules in 1925. In addition, Ferrell will draw no salary until he is reinstated.

THEATRES

AT THE CLIFTONA

They haven't got the coyotes singing Hi-De-Ho, but in almost every other way the Old West has gone swing in Big Crosby's latest, "Rhythm on the Range," opening Sunday at the Cliftona theatre with Crosby, Frances Farmer and Bob Burns in central roles.

"Rhythm on the Range" makes a cowboy out of Burns, and opens its story when the crooner buys a prize bull at a rodeo in New York's Madison Square Garden, then starts West with the animal in a box car. In the reels that follow, a rollicking romance is punctuated by the bawdy, playing of Burns; swing music by Louis Prima's world-famed band, Western songs, and the antics of Crosby, Burns, the bull, Miss Farmer, and Martha Raye, new screen comedienne "find."

Warren Hymer and George E. Stone, together with James Burke, add tuggery to the yarn by trailing Crosby and Miss Farmer across the continent with the idea of kidnapping the girl and demanding ransom from her wealthy father, Robert Holloway. Lucille Webster Gleason appears as Miss Farmer's rugged Arizona aunt.

Crosby and Miss Farmer are thrown together when the girl, fleeing from a society marriage, stows away in his box car. By railroad, on foot, and by auto and trailer, the pair fight their way to Arizona, hauling the bull with them.

AT THE GRAND

Will Rogers' famous picture, "A Connecticut Yankee," is the feature at the Grand theatre Sunday, Monday and Tuesday. Myrna Loy and Maureen O'Sullivan are in the supporting roles.

YESTERDAY'S HERO: Roy Weatherly, rookie of the Cleveland Indians, who bounced out two home runs to give his club the winning margin over the St. Louis Browns.

BREWERS TAKE LONGER MARGIN OVER APOSTLES

BY UNITED PRESS
The Milwaukee Brewers stride today at the head of the American association, eight and a half games ahead of St. Paul, their victim yesterday.

The Saints fell before an attack led by Chet Laabs, who socked two home runs, a single and a double. The heavy-hitters worked hard and scored 32 hits as the Brewers won 10 to 8.

The Louisville Colonels, who walked out of the cellar over Toledo, sent the Columbus Red Birds flying with a 11 to 4 defeat, scored in a 16-hit spree.

Meanwhile, Indianapolis won 6 to 2 as the Toledo Mudhens went down 8 to 2 before the latter-inning drive. Kansas City scored five runs in a big fourth inning to nail the Minneapolis Millers and gain slightly on a move for second place. The Millers managed to get in two runs.

NEW YORK NEAR CARDINALS AS PIRATES CLOUT

NEW YORK, Aug. 22.—(UP)—By running their consecutive winning streak to 11 games against the Boston Bees today, Billy Terry's New York Giants can grab the National league lead—if the St. Louis Cardinals lose to the Pittsburgh Pirates.

The Giants are in a challenging position for first place for the first time since May 2, when they were dropped from the leadership by the St. Louis Cardinals.

Bill Terry's ball players ran their straight victories to 10 yesterday—their 30th win in 35 starts—when they defeated the Boston Bees, 3 to 2, in a hard fought game. Dick Coffman rescued Frank Gabler and choked off a Bee rally after two runs had been scored.

The victory enabled the Giants to climb to within a half game of the Cardinals, who succumbed to the Pirates, 5 to 4, behind the eight-hit pitching of Red Lucas. The third place Chicago Cubs also gained on the leaders with a 7 to 2 decision over the Cincinnati Reds.

About This And That In Many Sports

League Race Honey

This National league pennant race is a honey with the Cardinals and Giants fighting it out for the top runs. * * * One full game separates the teams with the Giants having the best of the remainder of the schedule, meeting Brooklyn, Philadelphia, and Boston in most of its games while the St. Louis crew is battling it out with Chicago, Pittsburgh and Cincinnati, three teams much tougher than those in the east, with the exception of New York. * * * The Giants have one swing through the west and then they are back east to remain * * *

Young Players Help

Youthful hurlers have put the Terry-men on top the heap in their race. * * * Gabler, Smith, Castleman have all done their share, while a youthful second baseman, Burgess Whitehead, formerly of Columbus, has done his share. * * * White has been playing great ball. * * *

Raspberries for Wes

We read with interest where Manager Joe Cronin of the Red Sox has plastered a $1,000 fine on temperamental Wes Ferrell for leaving the game without permission Friday. * * * That is good news, because the overbearing Ferrell has always made it tough wherever he played. * * * Had he displayed the proper team attitude Cleveland might have knocked off a pennant a few years ago. * * * The action proves that all is not so well among Tom Yawkey's prima donna Gold Sox. * * *

Elite Stars Booked

The big baseball game of the county Sunday finds the Darbyville team invading New Holland for a game which might settle the county title. * * * New Holland has an edge over Ashville in a three-game series, and Darbyville has beaten Ashville, so a Darbyville victory Sunday would put the Muhlenberg township crew on top the heap. * * *

Miss Bankhead in "Reflected Glory", Play Written by George Kelly

WRITER CHANGES STAR'S DECISION TO LEAVE STAGE

Bob Burns and Mary M'Cormic to Tell of Arkansas

"Reflected Glory," a new play from which a sketch will be broadcast on Chateau Saturday night, brought together two interesting personalities of the stage. Actress Tallulah Bankhead and Author, George Kelly.

Miss Bankhead will play the leading role in the sketch to be broadcast over a WEAF-NBC network at 8:30 p. m. (EST). World premiered recently in San Francisco with Miss Bankhead playing the lead, the play is now running in Los Angeles.

Virtually in retirement on the West Coast, Author Kelly had foretold writing full length plays or scenarios. Miss Bankhead after triumphing in London, starred in several movies, then left Hollywood because of story trouble. In time, Kelly got an idea for a play, wrote it, sent it direct to Miss Bankhead and decided after one reading it was the story to bring about her return to the stage.

Both are natives of Arkansas. Robin Burns was born at Van Buren where the Arkansas river flows out of the Oklahoma hill country and enters Arkansas. One hundred and forty miles across the Ozarks, on the road to Little Rock from Van Buren, lies the hamlet of Belleville, birthplace of Mary M'Cormic.

Miss M'Cormic believes her early days in Belleville were more fascinating than those of the "Sage of Van Buren." To get Burns off to a good start as "Keeper of the Music Hall" in the absence of Bing Crosby, vacationing master of ceremonies, Miss M'Cormic will try to beat Bob at his own game, in addition to singing a few operatic selections that made her famous with the Chicago Opera Company, the Paris Opera Company, and the Opera Comique.

"I like radio," says Miss M'Cormic, who once had the distinction of singing simultaneously over three networks and appearing at the same time before an audience of 20,000 at Grant Park. "I think it offers a future for the singing artist. It puts you on your own, and you must stand up and deliver."

CIVILIZED LIFE PERILS FUTURE OF HOTTENTOTS

CAPE TOWN (UP)—The fate of the former hunter and warrior race of Hottentots, now overwhelmed by civilization, is described in an official report made by a commission appointed to investigate conditions in southwest Africa.

While most of the natives in this territory were found to be contented, the commission wrote about the Hottentots as follows:

"In the olden days, when the Hottentots could roam as hunters or as warriors over the huge desert-like country, which they knew so intimately, they were a power in the land. Now, however, that they have to live and earn their living in that country under civilized conditions they are out of their element and pathetically helpless."

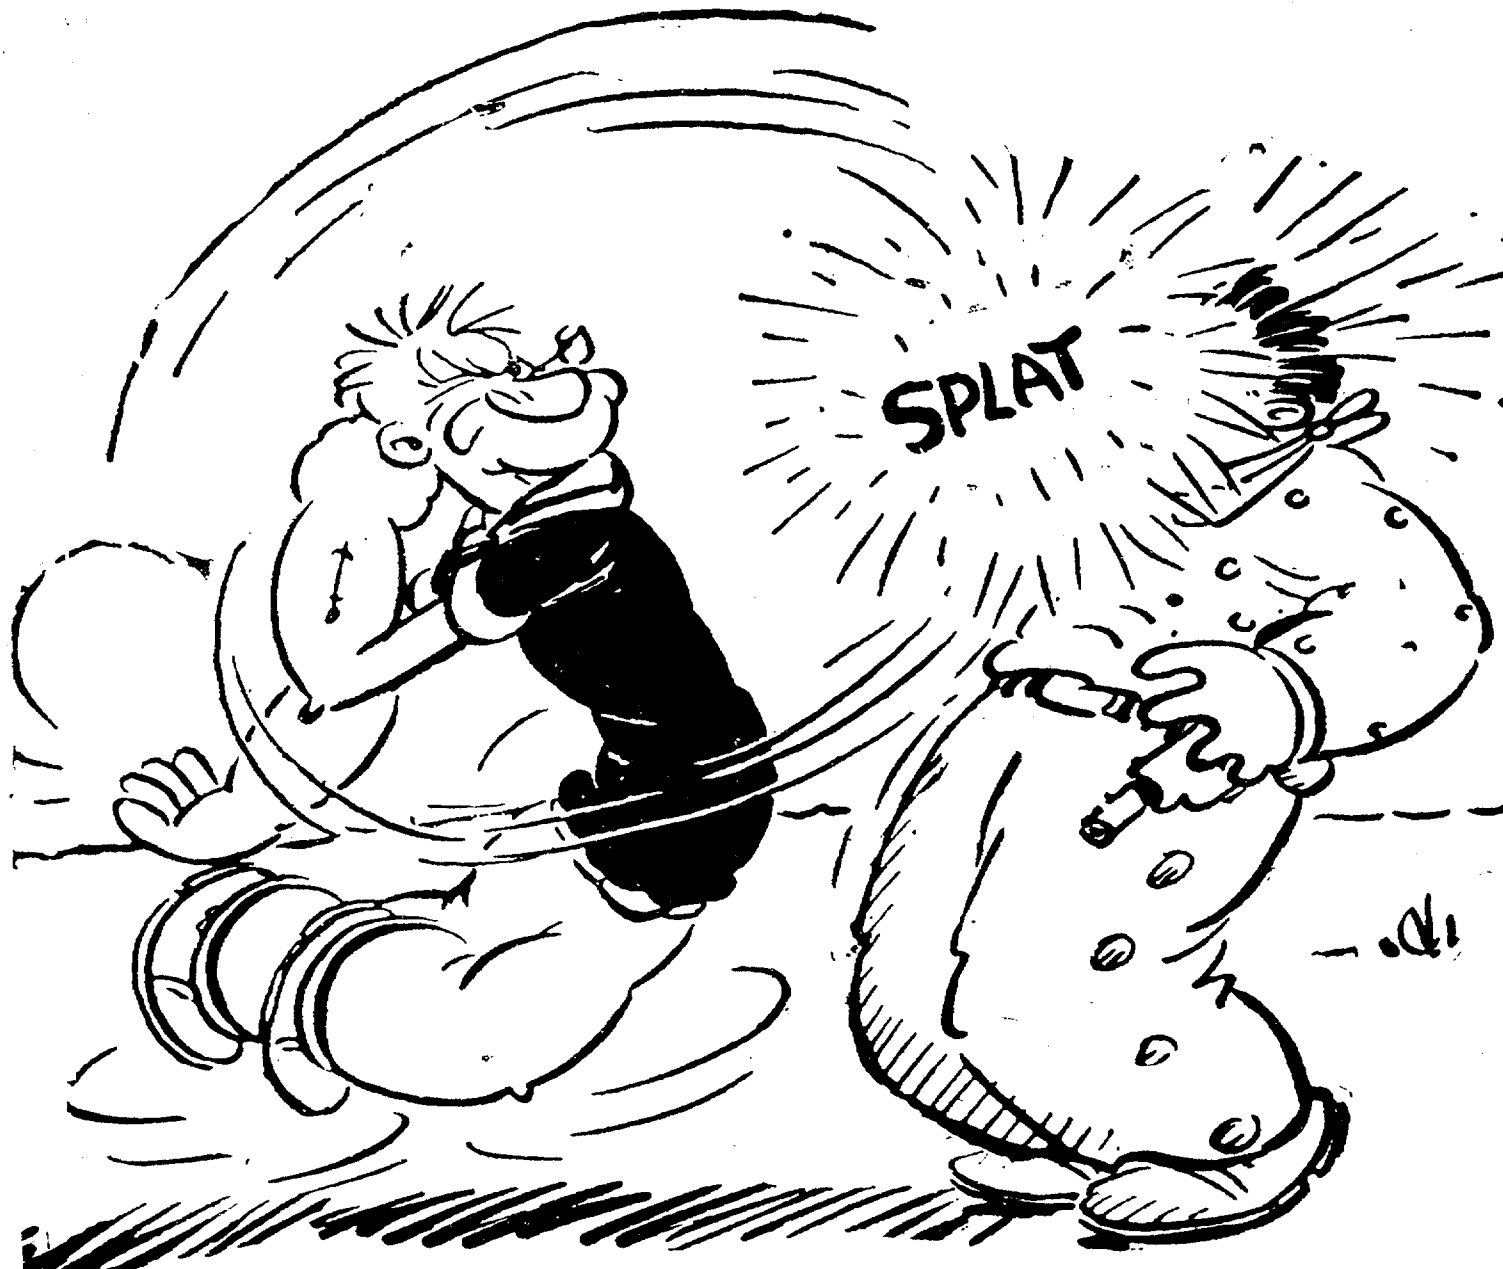

"Under the present circumstances, unless they have the sympathetic and intelligent help of the white man, they have a dismal future before them."

The commission also described how 5,000 Bushmen of southwest Africa, a wild but interesting people with a remarkable primitive culture of their own, have refused to how to civilization and have retreated into the Kalahari desert to make a living where other races would perish.

all Tales

CASEY MARION and Tull Barnes got together the other day, and started to tell each other of their experiences.

Casey, "You know, Tull, when I was timbering in the northwest it snowed so hard we had to be let down with ropes to reach the tops of the trees. And the fog was so thick that the fish lost themselves in the woods, but we soon remedied that by digging ditches in the fog and draining it back to the river."

Tull: "Well, when I was down digging the Panama Canal it was so hot there one day when my buddy went in swimming and dove off a 20-foot rock into the stream he forgot to take in account the evaporation and when he was half way down all the water was gone."

Casey: "Was he killed?"

Tull: "No, it happened that one of our sudden heavy rains came up, and he landed in eight feet of water."
